CAMPAIGNS & ELECTIONS

1. "What is automatic voter registration anyway? What the experts say." NCSL. The Canvass. Issue 71. July/Aug. 2016. pg. 1-3. (Four states have passed what sponsors have termed automatic voter registration laws: California, Oregon, Vermont and West Virginia; Oregon implemented its program beginning this year. The other three states have not yet implemented their programs, but Vermont and West Virginia will in 2017. Connecticut has announced it will implement its version of automatic voter registration through administrative rule in about two years.)

2. "Then and now: 2012 to 2016 comparisons." NCSL. The Canvass. Issue 71. July/Aug. 2016. pg. 3. (The focus is felon voting rights, with the amount of change at the legislative level is minimal.)

CHILDREN, YOUTH & FAMILIES

3. Anderson, Tim. "More than preschool...." Stateline Midwest. Vol. 25. No. 6. June/July 2016. pg. 1+. (Strategies to improve child well being are broadening, with greater emphasis on birth to 3 years and help for parents.)

5. Teplin, Linda A., et al. "Violent death in delinquent youth after detention." Juvenile Justice Bulletin. Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention. Sept. 2015. 13 pgs. (This bulletin examines the results of the Northwestern Juvenile Project-a longitudinal study of youth detained at the Cook County Juvenile Temporary Detention Center in Chicago, IL. Among the issues under examination, the authors looked at mortality rates among the youth enrolled in the project.

7. Mallinson, Daniel J. "Schoolyard politics: measuring and explaining variation in state antibullying policy comprehensive." State and Local Government Review. Vol. 48. No. 2. June 2016. pg. 100-113. (Education scholars consistently advocate for comprehensive antibullying policies; however, the 49 states that have adopted antibullying programs vary in their embrace of this approach.)

CONSUMERISM
8. The Consumer Action Handbook. USAGov. 2016. 14 pgs. (The Consumer action handbook is a resource guide that provides general information on shopping for goods and services and tips about your consumer rights. The Handbook has information to help you file a complaint about a purchase and includes a sample complaint letter that you can use and send to a company. It also includes a consumer assistance directory, with contact information for consumer protection offices in government agencies, and customer service departments at many national corporations.) FINANCE & REVENUE

32. Greenblatt, Alan. "Unclouding the budget." Governing. Vol. 29. No. 11. Aug. 2016. pg. 9. (With many states in post recession austerity, there are increasing demands that lawmakers provide more information about the difficult decisions they're making.)

FIREARMS

34. Clark, Korey. "Tipping point." Capitol Journal. Vol. XXIV. No. 22. pg. 1-5. (Is the scale tipping toward gun control in the nation's capitals?)

35. "Gun rights movement suffers setbacks in courts." Capitol Journal. Vol. XXIV. No. 22. pg. 8-9. (In a series of setbacks, last month a full panel of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit ruled 7-4 in Peruta v. San Diego that "the right to keep and bear arms" granted by the Second Amendment doesn’t extend to concealed weapons.)

HEALTH, WELFARE & SOCIAL SERVICES

37. "Minnesota results show cost cutting promise of patient centered health care homes." Stateline Midwest. Vol. 25. No. 6. June/July 2016. pg. 3. (Minnesota was an early adopter of the use of health care homes, and a five year study of their impact shows promising results for any state looking to reduce health costs and improve patient outcomes.)

40. Bradford, Ashley C. & W. David Bradford. "Medical marijuana laws reduce prescription medication use in Medicare Part D." Health Affairs. Vol. 35. No. 7. July 2016. pg. 1230-1235. (Using data on all prescriptions filled by Medicare Part D enrollees from 2010 to 2013, the authors find that the use of prescription drugs for which marijuana could serve as a clinical alternative fell significantly, once a medical marijuana law was implemented.)

41. Bishop, Tara F., et al. "Population of US practicing psychiatrists declined, 2003-13, which may help explain poor access to mental health care." Health Affairs. Vol. 35. No. 7. July 2016. pg. 1271-1277. (While primary care physicians and neurologists have increased from 2003-13, the number of practicing psychiatrists have decreased—which may be a contributor to the underuse of mental health services.)

43. Martinez, Julia C., et al. "Improving the health care system. seven state strategies." NCSL. July 2016. 27 pg. (This issue brief highlights seven target areas and strategies that have demonstrated results in states that are implementing them:
   1. Shift the payment model
   2. Dig up the data
   3. Put the patient first
   4. Target the sickest patient
   5. Treat the whole person
   6. Invest in prevention
   7. Promote safety and prevent medical harm.)

44. “Comparative data report on Medicaid.” 2012. A report submitted to the Fiscal Affairs and Government Operations Committee. Southern Legislative Conference. Council of State Governments. 134 pg. (This report includes statistical tables and a summary of key findings based upon research and questionnaires distributed to each member state in the SLC.) VF: Medicaid.

LAW ENFORCEMENT

49. Maguire, Edward R. "New directions in protest policing." Saint Louis University Public Law Review. Vol. XXXV, No. 1. 2015. pg. 67-107. (This article examines protest policing practices in the U.S. and offers suggestions for improving how police prepare for and respond to protests and mass demonstrations. Part I of the article examines the police response to the protests that occurred in and around Ferguson, MO after the shooting death of Michael Brown. Part II established a broader historical context for thinking about how protest policing has evolved in the U.S. over the past 50 years. Part III provides a brief overview of two bodies of social science research psychology—with different implications for improving protest policing strategies. Part IV draws on this research evidence in outlining a new vision for protest policing in the U.S.)

P. 50. McCormick, Marcia L. "Our uneasiness with police unions: power and voice for the powerful?" Saint Louis University Public Law Review. Vol. XXXV, No. 1. 2015. pg. 47-65. (The author will outline briefly the objections to police unions generally and more specific objections to police unions in the context of police reform.)

P. 51. Flanders, Chad & Joseph Welling. "Police use of deadly force: state statutes 30 years after Garner." Saint Louis University Public Law Review. Vol. XXXV, No. 1. 2015. pg. 109-133. (States generally have free rein to decide what defenses police can have, and the scope of those defenses. This article also includes a survey of all 50 states Use of Force Law.)

P. 52. "Stop and fleece." Governing. Vol. 29. No. 11. Aug. 2016. pg. 10. (Under civil forfeiture, police or prosecutors can claim that money or property contributed to a crime, even if no underlying criminal charge has been filed.)

POLITICS & GOVERNMENT

P. 53. Hennings, Valerie M. & R. Urbatsch. "Gender, partisanship, and candidate selection mechanisms." State Politics and Policy Quarterly. Vol. 16. No. 3. Sept. 2016. pg. 290-312. (How candidates are selected, such as through nomination by party elites or election by primary voters, potentially influences the underrepresentation of women in political office. Partisan differences suggest that primary voters in right leaning parties might select fewer female nominees than would their left leaning counterparts even if both parties' elites are equally likely to select female nominees.)

P. 54. Anderson, Tim. "For legal and practical reasons, disclosure laws exempt some legislative work." Stateline Midwest. Vol. 25. No. 5. May 2015. pg. 5. (The right to deny access to certain records is a long standing, widespread prerogative of legislators in states across the country—the result of a mix of constitutional language and principles, statutory language, and legal opinions.)

REFERENCE

58. "A fiscal update." State Policy Reports. Vol. 34. Issue 13. July 2016. pg. 1-7. (FY 2017 has just begun for the 46 states that follow a July-June fiscal year. In its recent Fiscal survey of states, the National Association of State Budget Officers got a read on how FY 2016 was shaping up, and what governors proposed for FY 2017.)

60. Clayton, Adam. "Why are some institutions replaces while others persist? Evidence from state constitutions." State Politics and Policy Quarterly. Vol. 16. No. 3. Sept. 2016. pg. 267-289. (Using data on state constitutional characteristics and legislative composition from 1834 to 2012, this article advances the theory that institutions are more likely to be endogenously replaced when the society of actors differs from the time of enactment, and that institutional characteristics can exacerbate or mitigate these risks.)

TECHNOLOGY ISSUES

69. Royse, David. "The fantasy life." Capitol Journal. Vol. XXIV. No. 25. Aug. 8, 2016. pg. 1-3. (The daily fantasy sports industry had a few wins this spring in its first full year of pushing to make its games explicitly legal across the country. While the question of whether the games are legal remains unclear in much of the nation, proponents of the game say the industry is in a period of positive momentum that's likely to continue.)

70. Clark, Korey. "Is government keeping up with technology?" Capitol Journal. Vol. XXIV. No. 26. Aug. 15, 2016. pg. 1-4. (Legislation and regulations have been coming fast on a host of technological issues in the headlines in recent years, including ride hailing, short term home rentals, drones and fantasy sports betting. But how well is government doing at keeping up with such disruptive technologies?)

TRANSPORTATION

72. Davis, Jon. "States hitting the legislative road to automated vehicles." Stateline Midwest. Vol. 25. No. 5. May 2015. pg. 1+. (Michigan leads the Midwest, but other states are starting to look at how 'driverless' cars can fit into traffic flow and laws.)
