

Using Multimedia to Win Prizes and Influence Audiences

LINCS members extend their thanks to Amy Wilson, Liz Dufour, Terry DeMio and Dan Horn from The Cincinnati Enquirer for sharing their multimedia project, “Seven Days of Heroin.” The project won the 2018 Pulitzer Prize for Local Reporting and the video received an Edward R. Murrow award for national excellence. Take a look at the “Seven Days of Heroin” digital presentation and the video.

SEVEN DAYS OF HEROIN

THIS IS WHAT AN EPIDEMIC LOOKS LIKE

The Enquirer sent more than 60 reporters, photographers and videographers into their communities to chronicle an ordinary week in this extraordinary time.
