5 INSURANCE REGULATORY MODERNIZATION

6 The National Conference of State Legislatures (NCSL) is committed to state regulation
7 of the business of insurance. NCSL acknowledges the responsibility of states to adjust 8 state systems to meet the needs of the modern economy. NCSL opposes any proposal 9 to establish either a federal or a dual system of regulation of insurance, to cede any 10 state authority to regulate financial institutions involved in the business of insurance or 11 to obtain Congressional ratification of trade agreements that preempt state regulation of 12 insurance.

13 States and insurance commissioners continue to develop a shared vision of insurance 14 regulatory reform to meet the needs of the modern marketplace while preserving the 15 advantages of the state system. NCSL supports the efforts of states to streamline and 16 simplify insurance regulation. NCSL endorses state participation in the Interstate 17 Insurance Product Regulation Commission, which creates a national state-based 18 system to make regulatory decisions quickly on life insurance products according to 19 uniform national standards. NCSL endorses state participation in the Surplus Lines 20 Insurance Multi-State Compliance Compact (SLIMPACT), an interstate compact to 21 protect and facilitate the collection of premium tax revenue on surplus lines and 22 independently procured insurance placements by the compacting states.

23

24 NCSL believes that state efforts to enact significant reforms in critical areas represent 25 tremendous progress, and NCSL will continue to support further efforts as states move 26 forward to achieve widespread reform in all areas in the years ahead.

27

28 State-Federal Partnership

29 Individually and at the national level, states work to modernize insurance regulation.
30 However, state legislatures recognize a legitimate federal role in overseeing and 31 promoting well-functioning insurance markets.

32 Title V of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act established 33 The Federal Insurance Office (FIO) within the U.S. Department of Treasury. While 34 NCSL and other state groups were successful in limiting the scope of the FIO's 35 authority, concern remains that the FIO will serve as a vehicle to promote a greater 36 federal role in the historically state-regulated industry of insurance.

37
38 Therefore, NCSL opposes any administrative action by the FIO or federal legislation 39 that: relies on wholesale preemption of state authority, would compel state compliance 40 with federal standards or those of any non-governmental third party, or conditions, 41 restricts or redirects state insurance revenues, including insurance premium taxes, fees 42 and fines, either directly or as a condition of a state's refusal to submit to federal 43 standards or federal efforts to commandeer a state executive branch official to 44 participate in a federal regulatory program.

45
46 Moreover, some in Congress and industry support federal legislation to establish a 47 single federal regulator of insurance or allow for dual federal and state insurance 48 regulation. NCSL opposes any provision of federal legislation that preempts state 49 authority through the creation of a federal insurance official, commission or entity with 50 the authority to regulate insurance, to implement federal standards, to enforce state 51 compliance with federal standards, or to initiate or participate in judicial proceedings to 52 resolve differences between federal standards and state law.

53
54 State legislators perform a critical role in the development of insurance public policy.
55 However, despite this important function, state legislators are oftentimes overlooked for 56 service on federal advisory boards and committees related to the regulation of the 57 business of insurance. Recognizing this recurring oversight, NCSL requests an 58 enhanced effort from the federal government to incorporate state legislators onto 59 associated insurance advisory panels.

60
61 Insurance Company Solvency

62 The safety and soundness of insurance companies operating in the United States are 63 the prime objective of state insurance regulation. State legislatures have endeavored to 64 strengthen state insurance departments and to create standards for financial regulation 65 that have improved the solvency of insurance companies.

66
67 NCSL opposes any proposal to establish federal standards for state solvency regulation 68 that cedes any authority to federal agencies to regulate financial institutions involved in 69 the business of insurance, including congressional ratification of trade agreements that 70 would preempt state regulation of insurance for solvency purposes. Although NCSL 71 continues to support the National Association of Insurance Commissioners' Financial 72 Regulation Standards and Accreditation Program, NCSL acknowledges that state 73 legislatures and governors have the responsibility to enact policy, which state regulators 74 enforce. NCSL recognizes that interstate compact proposals have the potential of 75 addressing binding uniformity and effectiveness in specific areas of regulation.

76
77 NCSL also objects to actions taken or contemplated by the Internal Revenue Service or 78 other federal agencies to assert priority claims to the assets of failed insurers. The 79 states should first be allowed to distribute an insolvent company's assets to pensioners, 80 family businesses, other policyholders and others protected by the McCarran-Ferguson
81 Act's delegation of the business of insurance to the states.

82
83 In the same vein, NCSL is concerned by federal bankruptcy rulings under the federal 84 bankruptcy code that would allow alien insurers and reinsurers to move certain trust 85 fund assets to bankruptcy proceedings in their domicile country. The trust funds 86 established by alien insurers and reinsurers are to serve as collateral for insurance and 87 reinsurance underwriting in the United States. Federal bankruptcy rulings have allowed 88 such alien insurers and reinsurers to be exempt from state solvency regulation and 89 have placed these collateral trust funds out of the reach of state insurance departments, 90 which are solely responsible for solvency protection. NCSL urges Congress to rectify 91 this situation by amending federal law to eliminate or limit this exemption for alien 92 insurers and reinsurers under the bankruptcy code.

93 Insurance Information Security

94 NCSL opposes any federal effort to preempt state laws and regulations or to enact 95 federal standards that address the use of financial and credit information in insurance.

96

97 INSURANCE FRAUD - FEDERAL CRIMINALIZATION

98 NCSL recognizes the toll that policyholder and claimant initiated fraud has on the cost of 99 insurance and the solvency of the insurer. We applaud the action taken in various states 100 to pass laws that make it more difficult to file a false claim, increase the penalties for 101 those who are guilty of fraudulent activities, and expand state insurance department 102 fraud units.

103 NCSL believes that the prosecution of policyholder and claimant fraud should and must 104 remain in the jurisdiction of state and local law enforcement officials. However, in cases 105 of internal insurer fraud that may be the result of interstate and international 106 conspiracies to defraud, loot or plunder an insurance company, states and the federal 107 government should cooperate to prosecute such criminal activity.

108

109 As a result of financial services modernization, the various federal and state financial 110 institutions regulators need to coordinate anti-fraud activities. However, federal 111 legislation to assist the coordination of state and federal anti-fraud activities should not 112 unnecessarily preempt state anti-fraud laws and regulations nor grant audit or subpoena 113 authority to a federal entity over a state agency operating under appropriate state 114 constitutions and laws.

115

116 NCSL's endorsement of federal involvement in the criminal prosecution of certain kinds 117 of insurance fraud does not diminish our support for continued state regulation of the 118 insurance business. Federal criminal sanctions will assist state regulators in state efforts 119 to prevent future insolvencies.

120

121 EQUAL ACCESS TO FBI CRIMINAL HISTORY RECORDS

122 State regulators should have efficient access to the Federal Bureau of Investigation's
123 (FBI) Criminal Justice Information System in order to establish dependable procedures

124 for licensing officers, directors, and agents of insurance companies across the United 125 States.

126
127 NCSL calls on Congress to give state insurance regulators statutory access to FBI 128 fingerprint files. This information is currently available to federal and state banking and 129 securities regulators. Access will help safeguard insurance consumers from the 130 unnecessary risk of having known fraud artists or violent offenders engaged in the 131 insurance business.

132

133 NATURAL DISASTER MITIGATION AND INSURANCE

134 NCSL urges Congressional action that would: (a) provide federal grants, tax credits or 135 deductions to assist consumers to strengthen their homes to better withstand 136 catastrophic natural disasters; and (b) create a commission to determine what other 137 action is necessary and appropriate to support and enhance the ability of existing 138 insurance and reinsurance mechanisms to cope with catastrophic natural disasters.
139 However, any such action must not displace private sector risk transfer mechanisms, 140 adversely impact a state's ability to levy premium taxes, regulate the business of 141 insurance and set solvency standards for property and casualty insurers.

142

143 TERRORISM RISK INSURANCE

144 NCSL requests Congress work with state insurance regulators to ensure that the 145 property and casualty insurance and group life insurance industries develop the 146 products to protect Americans from financial losses associated with terrorism and to 147 ensure an available and affordable insurance market for American consumers and 148 businesses.

149 NCSL continues to believe that any reauthorization of the Terrorism Risk Insurance Act 150 should recognize the temporary nature of the program, and therefore encourages efforts 151 to further promote development of the private insurance markets. Any federal plan for a 152 temporary and limited federal backstop for terrorism insurance coverage must not 153 adversely impact a state's ability to levy premium taxes, regulate the business of 154 insurance and set solvency standards for property and casualty and group life insurers.
